Testing Equipment

Biomeridian MSA-21 Professional Device (FDA Registered)

The MSA-21 System is a U.S. FDA-registered, computerized stress assessment system that measures stress in up to 62 different parts of the human body. It is currently used by over 1500 physicians in both the U.S. and many other countries as an important indicator of resistance to stress in essential bio-systems throughout the body.

The below test was conducted on 8 random individuals ranging in age and sex in a controlled environment. For purposes of speed and understanding the test analyzed the body in seven key areas. In each of these areas, the subjects were measured on a data output scale of 0-100. The ideal target zone falls within the 45-55 score range. Doctors say that with MSA-21 System, any measurement above 55 is stressful to the body as it indicates excess energy, or an inflamed condition in that part of the human biofield*. Any measurement below 45 is also stressful, because lower numbers represent impaired, weakened, or blocked energy systems. The closer the measurements are to 50, the closer to actually being in the ideal balanced state and the better able to cope with the effects of stress and fatigue.

A "BEFORE" stress assessment test was given, without the Moonlight Infused (MI) piece and the MSA-21 certified systems specialist recorded each of the seven point stress scores below.

An "AFTER" test was then conducted with (MI). The scores were recorded, and from the results below a notable positive difference is shown between the first and second test. Again, the closer that each of the 7 key scores are to 50, the closer the meridians are to being in a balanced state. (MI) has been shown to increase resistance to the effects of stress in a remarkably short period of time, allowing the body to function at its optimal level of performance.

*BioField: In 1994, the US National Institute of Health (NIH) established the term "Biofield" as an ensemble or matrix of different energies that extend outward from each person's body. These Biofield energies regulate and balance multiple systems that range from cellular to the whole person.

Meridians are the pathways of the positive and negative energy power, which carries on some of the communication between the various parts of human beings and are directly related to certain systems of the human body. Meridian points are electro-magnetic in character and consist of small palpable spots, which can be located by hand (through traditional acupuncture points), with micro-electrical voltage meters and with muscle testing, when they are abnormally functioning.

Conclusion:

The results of the above test show an average improvement of 43.1% in the 7 meridians tested with the Moonlight Infusion technology. These results demonstrate that the (MI) product has a significantly positive effect on the energy meridians of the user thereby strengthening thier system against stressers and bringing the user to a closer state of homeostasis.
